

Masthead Logo

The Iowa Review

Volume 36
Issue 1 Spring

Article 22

2006

Called Back, Called Back

Joshua Kryah

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Kryah, Joshua. "Called Back, Called Back." The Iowa Review 36.1 (2006): 101-101. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.6189>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

Called Back, Called Back

Acquit me, make me
purblind, unbloomed, a thing that,

when aroused,
 remains dormant, unused, none
among many. As the bulb that persists within its sullen, despondent mood, alive, but no more, no better than,

some kind of senseless meat.

I turn but wherever I turn I encounter
the same soft refrain—

*I did not call you, lie back down.
I did not call, lie back, lie down.*

There is death and then there is sleep, or I no longer know who's calling or what I've heard or what I'll say. As, when roused by your voice-light, its endless drag and weight,

I move as a tuber

 on the verge of swelling, the called forth fruited body, caught between monad and many,

between almost and already.